Dear Sir/Madam

RE: FINCHAM ORGAN, CONTINUING CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
90 BURNLEY STREET, BURNLEY

I write to advise you that the above instrument has been included in the National Trust's Register. The Register lists those places/objects which, in the Trust's opinion, are important parts of Australia's heritage and which therefore require special care.

The above instrument has been Classified in the Register. The Trust believes that Classified places/objects are an essential part of Australia's heritage and must be preserved.

A statement of significance in support of this Classification is attached.

The inclusion of a place/object in the National Trust Register does not impose any legal obligations on property owners or occupiers. The objective of including a place/object in the Register is to draw community attention to the special importance of that place/object as a component of the nation's heritage.

Please find enclosed a copy of Notes on the Classification & Recording of Historic Places. If there are any queries, please do not hesitate to contact Tania Chandler of this office.

Yours sincerely

T. Chandler
