HISTORY	A collection of relocated buildings set within a recent exotic garden.  The site is located on high ground with a west facing slope overlooking the Ruffey Creek valley.  It is bordered by a windbreak planting of Monterey Pines, which because of their topographical location form a strong, local landmark.  The Lutheran cemetery occupies the western sector of the site. When the Lutherans built their first church here in 1858 Baron von Mueller (who laid out the Melbourne Botanical Gardens) sent them a gift of Cypress Pines and other seedlings.[9] The Lutheran Cemetery is included in Theme 6.08 Cemeteries.
