HISTORY

Built in the early 1900s by Alexa Crouch on his orchard lands [89] this house is intact and in excellent condition. It is an Edwardian, triple-fronted, hip-roofed timber house. The left-hand front and rear right-hand side bays project as gables. The upper gables are timbered and jetty as decorative brackets. The main roof extends down as a skillion verandah which extends around the angle. At the corner is an angled minor gable with a turned finial in front of a splayed corner window. Other windows are triples.
